Price Board 'Exempt List' Grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials say nearly a fifth of the average American's cost of living will be exempt from post-freeze price controls. The Price Commission was putting finishing touches on those price guidelines, which are to replace the more-rigid freeze rules this weekend. An announcement was expected today or Friday.

But Wednesday the Cost of Living Council, which outranks the price panel, greatly expanded the list of items that will not be controlled. And the council said more exemptions might be made. It said all used products, including cars and homes, and a long list of lesser things including custom-made items, handcrafts and dues will be free from government ceilings after the freeze period ends at 12:01 a.m. Sunday. New homes will be exempt.

The council did not estimate how much of the cost of living the exempt items account for. However, an official at the Bureau of Labor Statistics said used cars make up 2 per cent of the Consumer Price Index, homes make up 6.2 per cent and other items might add a little more. These are added to items that were partly or wholly free from price ceilings from the start, including raw agricultural products, taxes, stocks, interest rates and imports. The bureau estimated earlier that these make up roughly 10 per cent of the cost of living. The new and old exemptions added together mean that 18.2 per cent or more of the cost of living will be free from post-freeze price ceilings. The Pay Board also has allowed some exceptions to its general rule that post-freeze agreements can't call for pay raises of more than 5.5 per cent a year. For example, existing contracts will be allowed to run their course subject only to rollbacks of raises found to be "unreasonably inconsistent" with the 5.5 per cent rule.

Furthermore, Donald Rumsfeld, executive director of the Cost of Living Council, said at a news conference Wednesday that the Pay Board likely will make other exceptions. He did not elaborate, but the board has left room for inequity adjustments and exceptions for substandard wages. In another action Wednesday, the Cost of Living Council announced that post-freeze controls for the vast majority of America's businesses and workers will be policed only by spot checks and citizen complaints. Advance approval of price or

Military Services Await Decision On Pay Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $2.4-billion military pay raise, biggest in history, may be delayed from taking effect Sunday unless the President's Pay Board acts this week to exempt the armed forces from its wage guidelines.

The raise, approved by Congress and signed into law by President Nixon Sept. 28 as part of the draft extension act, provides increases averaging 15 per cent in pay and benefits for 2.6 million men and women in uniform. The board's guidelines limit increases generally to 5.5 per cent a year.

Basic pay for recruits will be nearly doubled from $1,612 a year to $3,222. "The question of military pay is being given the highest priority but as of now the increase will not be automatic," a Pay Board spokesman said Wednesday. "There will be no change in pay until the board rules specifically on the increase."

But the Defense Department said it is prepared to begin paying the new rates next week. However, the department was rebuffed once before when it was forced by the administration to back down from its position that the armed forces were exempt from the wage-price freeze.

Although the board has had no official comment on the military pay issue, sources said a favorable ruling is almost certain—but not necessarily before the freeze ends at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Board members are believed to feel the military pay raise is not related to the cost of living but is more a "re-evaluation of what the military man is worth," the sources said.

Congress approved the raise to take effect Oct. 1 but the President put it off until Nov. 13, saying it was subject to his 90-day wage-price freeze.

The big pay - and - benefits package is intended to bring military pay scales up to civilian levels and help in attracting an all-volunteer army by July 1973.

Most of the gains are for the lowest - ranking enlisted men and for officers with less than two years of service—second lieutenants and Navy ensigns—whose basic monthly pay has qualified some of them for welfare payments.

Home Protection Warning Issued By County Sheriff

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff issued a warning to all homeowners and renters Thursday, asking them to report all suspicious occurrences to the Sheriff's Department.

A recent rash of home burglaries prompted the announcement, according to Radcliff.

Several crimes of major importance have been reported to the Sheriff's Department recently, and although the crimes were committed during daylight hours, none of the witnesses have been able to provide accurate descriptions. So Radcliff has asked Pickaway Countians to become "nosy neighbors."

"WE'RE not asking anyone to spy for us," he stated. "But if you see a strange car or person approaching your neighbor's home, report it to us. In order for any law enforcement agency to successfully stop crime, we must know of every unusual thing that occurs. And we need individual help to report suspicious things to the Sheriff's Department."

Radcliff has also cited a check list that, if properly used, can protect area homes from criminal assaults.

According to Radcliff, homeowners must install proper locks on their doors and use them. Keep your home, garages and porches well lighted. If you leave your house after dark, be sure to leave a light on in your home. Never leave valuables lying around. Keep them in a safe, or deposit box. Keep a record of all serial numbers on your property. If the items have no traceable numbers, apply your own mark to things. Be sure all screens and windows are fastened from the inside.

Drop Charges In OSU Outbreak

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Charges have been dropped against about one-third of the 200 persons arrested during disturbances in the Ohio State University area last weekend.

Municipal court officials said 79 cases had been dismissed because of confusion over specific charges and the failure of police to file affidavits to support the arrests.

For most of the others, a $50 fine is the toughest punishment which can be imposed. This is the maximum fine for conviction of failure to disperse at a dangerous assembly, a misdemeanor under recently enacted state law.

Roundtown

CIRCLEVILLE High Schoolers received an unscheduled "Armistice Day Holiday" today when an electrical transformer "blew" at the school.

Classes tomorrow as usual.

THURSDAY is traditionally Veteran's Day, and though no one received an official vacation, flags dotted city shops, reminding citizens of the importance once placed on this day.

By official proclamation, Veteran's Day celebrations were held Oct. 25 this year.

And if you do go away from home for a period of time, cancel all deliveries. Have your neighbors or post office hold mail for you until you return. Arrange to have a friend mow your lawn and sweep your sidewalk. Leave shades and blinds as you would normally have them. Notify your Sheriff's Department when you will be leaving and for how long you'll be gone.

According to Radcliff, "If Pickaway Countians will follow these hints, notice and report all suspicious occurrences, we can greatly reduce the upswing in crime we have been experiencing in the county."

Audio-Visual Tapes Convict OSU Student

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Audio-visual tape was used Wednesday to convict an Ohio State University student of disrupting the school's ROTC review last May.

It was the first time tape was used as evidence in Columbus Municipal Court.

Judge Patrick West fined Arthur Flesch, 24, of Columbus $50 and costs and sentenced him to 10 days in the workhouse for disrupting a meeting.

Flesch had pleaded innocent.

The charge was filed after demonstrators shouted obscenities and threw eggs during the ROTC review. Flesch testified that he and members of his Veterans Against the War refrained from those activities.

The tapes played by the Ohio Highway Patrol showed the activities of the demonstrators.

Hovey Claims New Measure Won't Pass

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 109th General Assembly's second joint House-Senate conference committee is reportedly just hours from final agreement on a personal and corporate income tax plan for Ohio.

Chairman Sen. Paul Gillmor, R-12 Tiffin, said following a closed door meeting of the six-man committee late Wednesday that "agreement is close."

"We will need at least one more meeting," Gillmor said. "If all goes well, it will be the last."

Gillmor said a caucus of Senate Republicans to discuss provisions of the new tax alternative will "likely" precede that next conference committee meeting.

"If everything goes right, there could be a bill on the Senate floor Friday," Gillmor added.

The second conference committee was appointed late Tuesday after the House overwhelmingly rejected legislation calling for an increase in sales taxes from four to five and one-half cents on the dollar.

In marathon sessions that ran through the entire day Wednesday, the second committee has tentatively accepted:

—A graduated tax on personal earnings ranging from one-half to three per cent.

—A corporation tax of two per cent on earnings below $25,000, and of six per cent on earnings above that, coupled with a continuing millage tax on net worth.

—The abandonment of across-the-board property tax relief in favor of relief, in the form of credit, to those paying disproportionately high property taxes.

—Elimination of $18.1 million in severance taxes—taxes on minerals taken from Ohio soil.

—An increase in taxes on the net worth of domestic insurance companies from two mills to three.

—An additional one mill tax against financial institutions.

—Three cents in additional taxes on cigarettes.

Gillmor said the package would yield some $834 million in new money for state programs and about $140 million in tax relief, including $15 in homestead exemptions for the elderly this biennium.

Asked whether the tax plan could attract 17 votes on the Senate floor—the required number for passage—Gillmor commented: "We'll just have to take the bird out and see if it has wings."

Demos Won, Chairman Declares

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Democratic Chairman William Lavelle says Republicans "ignored the facts" when they claimed massive victories in municipal elections around Ohio last week.

Democratic victories actually show, according to Lavelle, that the Democratic Party "is still the party of the people in this state."

He pointed to Cincinnati, where the Charter-Democrat coalition ended 15 years of Republican control of city council, and to Toledo, where Democrat Harry Kessler defeated Republican state Sen. Howard Cook for Mayor.

In both cases, Lavelle said, Republicans campaigned against the programs of Democratic Gov. John Gilligan.

"Republican leaders took a few isolated instances and tried to turn them into a mythical GOP sweep," Lavelle said in a statement Wednesday.

"But they can't ignore the fact that Democrats solidly control the city councils in Cleveland, in Akron, in Toledo, in Columbus, in Cincinnati and in Dayton."

"And they can't ignore the fact that such cities as Lorain, and Wooster, and Lancaster, and Findlay, and my own hometown of Athens, elected Democrats for the first time in years," Lavelle said.

Photo - Snapping Mariner 8 Near Mars Rendezvous

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Hurling faster and faster toward its Saturday rendezvous with Mars, Mariner 9 beams to earth today its first scientific photographs of the red planet. Some scientists fear a million-square-mile swirling dust storm on the planet will interfere with observation of surface features.

Other scientists, however, are eagerly awaiting Martian rendezvous because they feel the storm, which has been in progress for seven weeks will give them a unique chance to observe a dynamic, changing event under way in the planet's atmosphere.

Scientists said the reddish-yellow storm seems to be moving from 20 to 30 miles an hour, may have reached heights of more than five miles, and now covers all of the visible southern part of the planet.

Mariner 9 began taking a series of 31 photographs at 5:17 p.m. EST Wednesday while 535,000 miles from Mars. The picture-taking session was to end at 5:56 p.m. EST today when the tiny spacecraft was 355,000 miles from the planet. The photographs were stored in an onboard tape recorder which was to begin playing them back at 6:16 p.m. EST for display at the California Institute of Technology here.

Twenty-five of the pictures are to show Mars as it rotates through one Martian day. Six others will show Deimos, the tiny Martian moon.

Deimos has never been photographed close up before. Phobos, the other Martian moon, was photographed once in 1969 during the Mariner 6 and 7 flights. From earth the moons appear only as pinpoints of light. Scientists hope Mariner 9 will be able to see surface details on the moons.

Brad Smith, an astronomer to New Mexico State University, said Wednesday signs seem to indicate the raging dust storm was beginning to clear. But he said it still will obscure much of Mars Saturday when Mariner goes into orbit.

Smith showed newsmen at JPL a photograph taken Monday by Mariner 9 from a distance of 850,000 miles during a series of "calibration" photographs that checked out spacecraft systems.

"It shows superiority of the photometric design of the Mariner 9 spacecraft," he said, and holds promise for seeing details of the Martian surface after the twice daily orbits begin.

Mild Conditions Spread Over U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fair skies and mild temperatures spread across most of the nation today although light snow lingered in the northern reaches of New England and scattered showers splashed into the Pacific Northwest.

Light snow mixed with rain fell in portions of Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. At the other end of the nation rain fell in Washington, western Oregon and northwestern California.

Temperatures ranged from a low of 19 at Rock Springs, Wyo., to 67 at Key West, Fla.

His withdrawal, after a costly, six-week campaign, could leave Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York as principal rivals for liberal Democratic support in early primaries next year.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine remains the frontrunner, the man to beat for any Democrat who wants the 1972 presidential nomination.

Foreign Aid Remains In Doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate and House have taken separate steps to continue U.S. foreign aid but doubt remains either move can be completed before the current program expires Nov. 15.

The Senate late Wednesday passed a sharply reduced $1.1-billion economic aid bill for the remainder of this fiscal year by a vote of 61 to 23.

Senators today consider a $1.2-billion military aid measure, second portion of a two-part package designed to replace the $2.9-billion aid bill rejected by the Senate on Oct. 29. The administration has asked a total of $3.4 billion.

The House, meanwhile, passed and sent to the Senate an interim funding resolution to provide money until Congress adjourns for several federal agencies—chiefly the Pentagon, the Agency for International Development (AID), which runs the foreign aid program, the Office of Economic Opportunity, which administers the anti-poverty program, and the District of Columbia. Present authority for all of them expires Monday.

But Chairman Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said he won't even call a meeting of his Senate Appropriations Committee to consider the continuing resolution passed by the House.

Meanwhile, the General Accounting Office ruled that unspent foreign aid funds can't be used for administrative expenses in most cases, so AID will have to close up shop unless Congress acts by Monday.

Eban Fears U.S.-Soviet Settlement

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — Foreign Minister Abba Eban says the Israeli government is concerned President Nixon may work out a Middle East solution with Soviet leaders during his visit to Moscow next May.

Eban made the remark Wednesday night in answer to a question at a kibbutz meeting but did not elaborate. The Israeli government has said repeatedly any permanent solution must be negotiated by the Arabs and Israelis and not imposed from outside.

Eban denied reports of a confrontation between the Israeli government and the Nixon administration over the latter's Middle East policy and is hold-up of shipments of Phantom jets to Israel but conceded there was a "difference of opinion."

He said the Americans have not changed their support of Israel's three basic demands for a peace settlement.

—That there be no total withdrawal of Israeli troops from occupied Arab territories before peace.

—That a peace settlement cannot be imposed on the parties to the conflict.

—That Israel must remain strong militarily.

He said the differences between Jerusalem and Washington had been exaggerated.

Hardin Ready To Quit As Agriculture Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin is reported ready to quit, but White House officials say the decision is not linked with the fretting of President Nixon's political advisers over Farm Belt discontent.

For the record, the White House and Agriculture Department were noncommittal on Hardin's plans.

But administration sources indicated Wednesday that it is virtually certain Hardin will resign soon from the Cabinet post he has held since Nixon took office.

White House officials, who declined to be named, stressed that Nixon is happy with the job Hardin has been doing.

However, GOP political strategists have been unable to hide their growing concern about sagging Republican fortunes among farmers in the Midwest.

The GOP lost several key Farm Belt congressional contests in 1970, and the political planners are worried about what this might portend for 1972.

Nixon carried virtually every farm state in 1968 after a campaign in which he was sharply critical of Democratic farm programs.

Hardin has stressed repeatedly that farmers need substantial boosts in income. However, inflation and the crunch of rising production costs have made the goal elusive.

One of the hangups for Republicans is an historic parity ratio used to measure farm well-being. The ratio, expressed as a percentage, relates prices farmers receive with expenses.

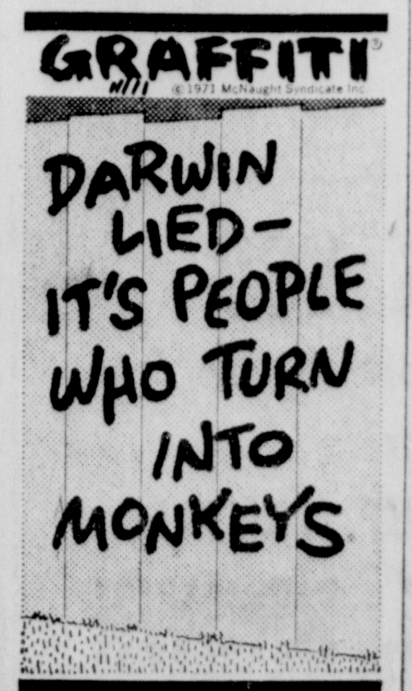

"The parity ratio has shriveled to a mere 74 per cent—the lowest since the darkest days of the depression," Nixon said at

Des Moines, Iowa, during the 1968 campaign.

To the consternation of administration farm officials, the parity level has dropped since Nixon assumed office.

Half a dozen times in the past year the ratio dipped to depression levels. Last December it was 67 per cent, lowest since December 1933. Last month it was 69 per cent.

Friends may call at the funeral home beginning 7 p.m. Thursday.

GOP Seeks Way To Block Demo Attack On Wage Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans on the House Banking Committee planned a counter-attack today to strip away Democratic-backed amendments limiting President Nixon's Phase 2 economic legislation.

Their principal target is a provision adopted by a one-vote margin last week that would require all but grossly disproportionate negotiated wage increases to be paid during the post-freeze period. The requirement would include retroactive payments for the 90-day freeze ending at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Such a requirement is a major goal of organized labor.

Republicans, in close consultation with the White House, were reported debating whether to make their major effort within the committee or on the floor of the House, after the bill clears the committee.

One possible strategy is an effort to muster a committee majority for a substitute bill that would delete some, but not all, the amendments.

In addition to the retroactive-pay provision, such a substitute reportedly would omit a provision for consumers' damage suits in case of overcharges and a requirement that interest rates be regulated whenever other controls are in effect.

A provision exempting from pay controls the wages of working people below the poverty level might be allowed to remain in the substitute.

The few Republicans who voted with Democrats for various amendments were reported under heavy pressure to reverse their positions. And members generally reported a heavy volume of messages from union leaders in their districts.

The committee has yet to reach one major decision: whether to extend the basic authority for economic controls a full year, until April 30, 1973, as Nixon requested.

Some Democrats are saying Congress should have another look at the economic program after Phase 2 gets under way. Others would prefer not to have to vote on the chance issue in an election year.

Tavern Theft Brings Grand Jury Hearing

Edward E. Hettinger, 23, Route 1, Chillicothe, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Logan Elm Tavern Oct. 29 Wednesday in Municipal Court and was bound to the Grand Jury under $3000 bond by Judge Sterling Lamb.

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff said Gary Bennett, Route 2, Williamsport, who is currently in Ross County Jail on a burglary charge is also indicted in the case.

According to Radcliff, Bennett entered the tavern by smashing a glass window. He allegedly took an undetermined amount of beer and deposited it in Hettinger's car. Hettinger was the look-out, according to Radcliff.

Camping Tent Is

Destroyed By Fire

A camping tent was destroyed in a fire at 8 this morning on Dunmore Road.

The tent, owned by Bill E. Metcalf, 145 Dunmore, was stored on top of a heating stove in the garage. Apparently someone lit the stove and did not remove the tent, which ignited. The residents had pulled the canvas into the yard and out of the garage when city firemen arrived to extinguish the blaze. Only damage was to the tent.

Hovey Claims

State Finance Director Harold Hovey predicted the committee recommendation, if it does finally take its currently proposed shape, will not survive a floor test.

"There is no way a Republican tax bill can pass," he said. "There just aren't enough votes."

Hovey warned that any plan falling short of income taxing levels and ratios proposed in the modified versions of the Gilligan administration's final compromise offer would quickly lose labor and administration support.

The so-called Taft-Flannery legislation calls for a personal income tax of from one-half to four per cent, and a corporation tax of either four or eight per cent. The measure also carried a number of special taxes on particular industries aimed at drawing labor and other support to the bill.

Organized labor's spokesman at the Capital declined to judge the new GOP option, patterned closely after legislation authored by Gillmor and Sen. Michael Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, earlier in the session.

"I don't know," I want to see this first," commented AFL-CIO President Frank King.

But King had warned earlier in the day that "if they (the committee) lower the corporation income tax from the four to eight per cent level, they've lost me."

Okinawa Treaty Gains Senate Nod

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration hopes relations with Japan, which plunged to a post-World War II low in the past three months, have bottomed out and will turn upward as the result of overwhelming Senate ratification of the treaty returning Okinawa to Japan.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers called the 84-6 Senate vote Wednesday "a ringing affirmation by the people of the U.S. to our Japanese friends and allies of friendship, trust and mutuality of interest."

Other U.S. officials and experts who follow the situation closely, however, cautioned against over-optimism that U.S.-Japanese relations were restored to their previous high.

The Japanese government welcomed the Senate move as "an extremely happy event."

The Senate action came while U.S. troops on Okinawa were confined to barracks to avoid incidents and demonstrating students and workers in Tokyo were calling for an end to all U.S. military operations in Japan.

The treaty requires prior consultation by the United States with the Japanese government on matters involving major changes in equipment such as the introduction of nuclear weapons, major changes in the deployment of troops and aircraft and the use of Okinawa bases for direct combat operations.

Big Labor Takes On Nixon In Hassle Over Pay Boosts

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Organized labor's strong opposition to new federal wage limits is shaping up as an early issue in the 1972 presidential election and most union chiefs are already virtually committed to trying to oust President Nixon from the White House.

"We will not be a scapegoat for this administration," said AFL-CIO President George Meany, whose labor federation of nearly 14 million members is working full tilt to defeat Nixon.

The election campaign makes Meany's decision over whether to quit Nixon's Pay Board or stay on it to fight from the inside as much a political as a practical problem for labor.

While Meany said it will be up to the AFL-CIO convention next week to decide whether to remain on the Pay Board or walk out, most labor leaders gathering here say privately it will be Meany's own decision.

One major AFL-CIO union, the meat cutters with 500,000 members, is mounting a convention campaign for a labor walkout from the Pay Board. But the meat cutters frequently are at odds with Meany on big policy questions.

The AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department representing some three million workers, and more closely in tune with ex-plumber Meany, took a more cautious view of hopefulness that Meany will remain on the board "to work out problems from the inside."

But the leaders of the 17 construction unions said they will abide by whatever the convention decides.

The AFL-CIO has two other members among the five labor members of the Pay Board who would certainly follow Meany in whatever action he takes.

They are Presidents I. W. Abel of the United Steelworkers and Floyd Smith of the International Association of Machinists. The two other labor seats are held by Presidents Frank E. Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters and Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers, the nation's two largest unions outside the AFL-CIO. They have generally followed Meany's lead so far in dealing with Nixon's wage controls.

Charles Rihl 'Satisfactory' After Shock

Charles Rihl, 41, of 1050 Sunshine, is listed in satisfactory condition this morning in Berger Hospital after suffering a severe electrical shock Wednesday morning while working on his automobile.

Rihl was discovered unconscious in the garage at his parents' home at 336 E. Union St. by his father. His breathing was restored by means of mouth to mouth resuscitation and Mader's emergency ambulance supplied him with oxygen enroute to the hospital.

The accident is termed a freak incident when Rihl, who was trying to time his car, grabbed a distributor wire while standing on damp concrete floor. He received a momentary severe shock which knocked him unconscious. His father found him moments later lying over the car, still holding the wires.

PAR Conference Held Recently

"A Challenging Future" was the theme for the third annual conference of Professional Association for the Retarded held Nov. 4-5-6 at the Columbus-Sheraton Hotel.

During the General Session, greetings were extended by Dr. Roger Gove, Commissioner of Division of Mental Retardation for Ohio and for Mayor Sensenbrenner by Dr. William Brown, Health Commissioner of Columbus.

Keynote speakers were Brian McHugh of the Department of Special Education at Ohio University and Dr. George Solyanis, Executive Director of American Association of Mental Deficiency from Washington, D. C. Guest speaker for the banquet session was Alan G. Phillips, Assistant Secretary General of National Society of Mentally handicapped from Great Britain.

Representatives had opportunity to attend workshop sessions related to specific needs and interests.

In attendance from the Pickaway County Program for Mental Retardation were: Donald Hough, administrator; Mary Ann Willoughby — workshop supervisor; Leora Sayre, Harriet Morris, Jane Hammon and Roberta Wyllie, instructors for the School; Miriam Turner and Hannalore Parks, instructor assistants; Mary Gravy, home trainer.

CPFD Douses Fire

The Commercial Point Fire Department held fire damage to $50 as they doused a blaze at the Gary Cremons home, Route 316, just west of Route 104, 11:07 p.m. Wednesday.

The fire apparently started in the attic as a result of an overheated furnace.

The house is owned by Rex Hall, Route 2, Ashville.

However, highly placed sources in the UAW reported in Detroit Wednesday that the union is expected to oppose any labor pullout from the Pay Board. The UAW consensus, the sources said, is that the union's members will get all or nearly all of their wage boosts scheduled before the current wage-price freeze went into effect.

Reduction Is Granted In Sentence

A Covington, Ky. man won reconsideration of his case in Common Pleas Court today and a reduction in charge.

John Milton Jones, one of three Covington area men arrested near Williamsport in December last year carrying acetylene torches and other burglary tools, was granted a reduction in the felony charge of carrying a concealed weapon to a misdemeanor weapons charge and sentenced to ten months in jail.

In announcing his decision, Judge Ammer ruled that the time Jones had been confined in the county jail and the Ohio penitentiary would be credited toward this charge. Since the Kentuckian had already served more than the 10-month sentence, he will be released.

His release will be to federal authorities however, who have a legal detainer on Jones to transport him to Indiana where he must serve a long sentence.

Jones was with John Mulberry and Leonard Johnson last December when Sheriff Deputy Bill Dountz stopped their car and panel truck and discovered a number of burglary tools in the truck. A gun was found in the stolen automobile which Jones was driving.

Teays Valley Board Plans Special Meet

Teays Valley Board of Education has scheduled a special meeting Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. At this board session, members will discuss study state legislation and the school district's financial standing.

Price Board . .

wage increases will be required only of the biggest businesses and unions.

However, Rumsfeld stressed that all wholesale and retail prices and wages would be subject to controls unless specifically exempted, regardless of the size of a business or the number of persons covered by a wage agreement. Only the method of enforcing the ceiling will vary by size.

The council established three categories for prices and wages.

—Advance approval by the Pay Board or Price Commission is required for the biggest units. These are businesses with $100 million or more in yearly sales, and wage agreements affecting 5,000 or more persons. This includes roughly 1,300 companies with 45 per cent of all sales, and 500 wage agreements affecting 10 per cent of the work force.

—Quarterly reporting, but no advance approval, is required of the middle group. These are subject to review and possible wage or price rollbacks. Included are businesses with $50 million to $100 million in yearly sales, and wage agreements including 1,000 to 5,000 workers. This takes in 1,100 companies with a scant 5 per cent of all sales, and 4,000 wage agreements affecting 7 per cent of American employees.

—No reporting or advance approval is required for businesses with under $50 million in sales or agreements affecting fewer than 1,000 workers. These will be policed in the same way as the 90-day freeze was enforced, by Internal Revenue Service spot checks and complaints by citizens.

The council said this group contains 10 million businesses with half of all sales, and 10 million wage agreements with 83 per cent of all workers.

Dear Abby:

Teaching Child Respect For Others

DEAR ABBY: Teen-agers have a very common problem. Will you help us, please?

I asked my very understanding grandfather why so many teen-agers hate their parents, and he said, "Probably because of the parents' snooping."

I think my grandfather is right. Lots of parents (especially mothers) open their children's mail. My grandfather says it's another person's mail. Does this include teen-agers?

If kids have a legal right to such privacy, how can they enforce it?

DEAR STEVE: My legal beagle says, "It is federal offense to tamper, interfere with, or improperly obtain possession of mail addressed to another."

However, if a minor resides with his parent, the parent may (a) open the minor's mail without his consent, (b) destroy the mail of the minor without his permission, (c) instruct the postal authorities to send the minor's mail directly to the parent (d) instruct the postal authorities to withhold the mail from the minor.

In plain language Steve, parents DO have a legal right to open their children's mail.

BUT HAVING a right and exercising it are two different things, and since children learn from example, the best way to teach children to respect the privacy of others is to respect theirs.

DEAR ABBY: Recently at my mother in law's house, my child asked me a direct question about sex. I gave my child a direct answer. My mother in law was horrified and said as much. She then let me know in no uncertain terms that she thought the child was too young to be told. I then replied that if a child is old enough to ask the question, he's old enough to be told the answer.

I then asked my husband how old he was before he had sex explained to him. He said, "I asked my mother where I came from when I was six, and she said, 'Ask your father.' I asked my father and he said, 'You probably know more than I do already,' and that was the end of it."

My husband sides with his mother by saying, "Nobody ever told us kids anything, and we never got into trouble?"

I say, he's darned lucky. What do you, say?

MODERN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'm with you.

DEAR ABBY: We recently married off our youngest daughter at a lovely church wedding. We had a reception and sit-down dinner for 364 guests. Since this was our third wedding, and we were more experienced, we would like to tell you how we handled guests who failed to acknowledge our R.S.V.P. invitations but showed up anyway:

First, we did not telephone those who failed to acknowledge our invitation to ask, "Are you coming?"

We simply planned on entertaining the ones who responded, and we assumed that those who did not, were not coming.

Those who didn't respond, but showed up anyway, were not given the same cordial welcome as those who responded in the affirmative.

No last minute rushing around to set more places at the table, and no hastily scribbled place cards for them. They were treated like "drop in" guests, and had to wait until they could conveniently be served.

Care to comment?

NO ULCERS IN N.Y. DEAR NO ULCERS: If anything could cure one who ignored an R.S.V.P., but showed up anyway, this would. But too few hostesses have the courage to follow your example.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FRIENDSHIP RUINED": What did you expect? The only person lower than a woman who would live it up with her best friend's husband while she was in the hospital having a baby, is the husband who would confess to "get it off his chest."

Nome Not 1-Horse Town; 'Garbage Pony' Sent Away

NOME, Alaska (AP) — This old gold rush city is on its way out as a one-horse town. Tessa has been given her walking papers.

The 5-year-old Shetland pony's problem is garbage cans. She can't resist poking into them.

In the old days, when such men as Wyatt Earp strolled along Nome's board sidewalks, hundreds of horses were used to haul loads through the boom town's muddy streets and to move gold dredges over the gold-rich gravel surrounding Nome.

But the number dwindled and dwindled until two weeks ago Tessa and another horse were the only two in town.

Then the other horse was killed to provide food for a dog team on display for tourists.

With the town to herself and left to roam, Tessa increased her assaults on Nome's garbage cans and the city administration decided she had to go, one way or the other.

Happily for Tessa, it's the other. She'll be shipped by air to Kenai, Alaska, south of Anchorage, as soon as space on a cargo plane can be arranged by her keeper, the Rev. Paul Bills of the Assembly of God church.

"This horse has been in everybody's garbage pail and the whole town is upset," the minister said. "The police and the mayor have been getting all kinds of complaints."

Until she developed a penchant for garbage cans, Tessa had been a town pet for Nome's 3,000 residents.

Robert Morris, who originally bought Tessa, said: "It got to be a real bother. The kids won't pay much attention to her anymore. I couldn't find anyone to buy her, so I gave her away."

And the hay Tessa munched along with the tidbits she found in the garbage cans was expensive—up to $150 a ton by air, with no road links between Nome and other Alaska cities.

Police Chief David Scott, who eventually passed down the go-or-else edict, seemed almost apologetic about the whole episode.

"Gee whiz," he said, "every day there was three or four people at the doorway complaining about knocked-down garbage cans."

"I promised the mayor she'd be dead or out of town. We had to do something."

Medicaid Expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 13 million poor children are guaranteed eligibility for free eyeglasses, hearing aids and dental work under a new federal program launched after two false starts and 2½ years of delay.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Tuesday that states participating in Medicaid must begin offering free preventive medical care for eligible children within 90 days.

Top priority goes to children under 6 years old, with others up to the age of 21 coming under the program by July 1, 1973.

HEW officials said routine health care benefits will be extended to about 7.3 million children not now eligible under other federal welfare assistance programs.

The cost is estimated at $20 million this fiscal year, $40 million in fiscal 1973 and $200 million in fiscal 1974 when older children are included.

WESTFALL-JACKSON PTB

The Westfall Jackson Parent Teacher Booster Club meeting was held November 8 at the Jackson School.

Although the P.T.B. has no active part of the candy sales now being conducted at Jackson, they fully support it, and Mr. Quincel reported the proceeds from it will be spent for classroom needs at Jackson School. Any questions concerning this project, or if additional candy is needed, please contact Mr. Quincel, Mrs. Michael Tarbill or Mrs. Ray Horch Jr.

The quality and quantity of the lunch program was discussed and Mr. Quincel reported that the cafeteria serves a Class A Menu, which is approved through Mr. Shearer's office, there they are checked very closely to make sure they follow the state guideline. If a sandwich or bread does not appear on menu there is another food to replace the starch food value in the menu. If the child does not have enough food, he may ask for more, if it is available it will be given, extra sandwiches may be purchased.

Future P.T.B. programs were then discussed. Mrs. Ronald Beatty being named chairman of the February Talent Show, and ribbons will be purchased for each child participating in the March Science Fair. This will be for child created Science projects grades 1 through 6. Further information will be given on this program. Peggy Riffle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Riffle presented patriotic songs and dance which was enjoyed by all.

Tax Muddle

With the approval by the Senate Finance Committee of the $5.7 billion income tax reduction for individuals already passed by the House, the path is relatively clear for substantial tax relief. The only problem is, for many taxpayers the rate of federal taxation beginning in January may go up instead of down.

This is so for at least two reasons. First, tax rates to finance Social Security are scheduled to rise still higher on the first of the year. And, the income tax withholding tables now in use do not provide for a sufficiently large deduction for certain classes of taxpayers — particularly those households in which husband and wife both work. New withholding tables to go into effect next year will correct this error with an upward hike in withholding rates.

Assuming the tax relief measure now before Congress passes as it stands, tax relief for individuals would be provided largely in three areas. The personal exemption, now $650, would be increased to $675 for 1971, and rise to $750 in 1972 and beyond.

The standard deduction, now a maximum of $1,500, would be increased to a maximum of $2,000, with the percentage changing from 13 percent to 15 percent. A change in the low income allowance formula would help taxpayers near the official poverty level, by increasing allowances both this year and next.

How it would all add up for a particular taxpayer is not clear at this point, except that the added tax relief in many instances will be checked by and possibly surpassed by the tax increases.

Crane Problem

People who worry about whooping cranes — and there is reason to believe they outnumber the cranes — have further cause for concern in the news that so far fewer than 20 of the rare birds have returned to the Aransas Wildlife Refuge in Texas, their winter feeding grounds.

That is fewer than showed up at this time last year. The U.S. Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service, which doubles as census and missing cranes bureau in such matters, hopes that the absent one will show up later.

But the basic threat to the survival of what was once an abundant, species lies in the fact that few young are hatched during each summer nesting season in northern Canada. But this is strictly a crane problem and if the census takers will take a holiday, perhaps the cranes will do something about it.

From Pal To Guard

Dogs used to be pets for families with children and companions in homes without young ones. The canine members of a family were members of the household for the joy they brought to their masters.

They formerly were selected for their good temperament and friendly disposition, whether pure bred or mixture. Some of them still are chosen on this basis, but an increasing number of dogs are chosen by American owners for another quality — their ability to fend off potential attackers.

Although various breeds, from collies and cocker spaniels to poodles, beagles and scotties, at times have been favorites, the undisputed preference today, especially in the large cities, is the German police dog.

Straining at the end of a leash or greeting a caller at the door, this is an animal which discourages all but the most foolhardy footpads. Police crime blotters record few instances in which muggers chose victims with these animals at their sides.

It is a sad commentary that man's best friend increasingly is being used to ward off predators of his own species.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a bank teller gets tired of hearing:

"Just put it all in this little brown bag, and don't make a squawk."

"There must be some mistake. I couldn't be overdrawn. I'm never overdrawn this early in the month."

"Why is it I always seem to have less money this month than the month before?"

"Don't you ever get tired of handling other people's dough?"

"Would you mind looking through your change drawer for a 1916 penny minted in Denver? I need one to help complete my coin collection?"

"After I saw you at the $50 window at the racetrack last Saturday, Roger, I decided it might be a good idea to close out my account here."

"Don't get nervous. Just put it all in this little brown bag, and—"

"You may have a banker's hours, Roger, but the similarity stops right there."

"Are you sure the signature on this check is really mine? That doesn't look like the way I sign my name when I'm sober. Of course, on the other hand, I never write a check when I'm sober."

"Put it in, take it out. Put it in, take it out. Why don't I ever manage to keep a little for a rainy day so I can afford to buy an umbrella?"

"Where are you going on your vacation this year, Roger? Brazil?"

"Would you mind cashing my personal check for $215, and give it all to me in quarters? I want to pay off my no-good, two-bit chiseling landlord."

"If you give somebody too much money by mistake, Roger, do you have to pay it back to the bank yourself, or does it just let bygones be bygones?"

"You know if you just dipped in the till a little each day for yourself, kid, in time you could buy out the bank."

"Some day this will all be done by machines."

"Your face looks familiar. Aren't you the same guy I held up last month? Well, then you know the routine. Just put it all in this little brown bag, and—"

"I can't understand how they missed naming a hurricane after you."

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The "guarantee" was emblazoned upon the package.

The company guarantees, it said, to replace any malfunctioning parts due to errors in manufacture, provided the malfunction occurred within one year of the purchase date and provided the purchaser paid all packaging and postage costs as well as all labor charges involved.

The product was an inexpensive clock that anybody with common sense would hesitate to return to the factory. They would be even less inclined to do so when they realized they were to pay all costs. Some guarantee.

More accurately, the statement should have been called a limitation, its intent and effect being to limit the manufacturer's responsibility to live up to his obligations.

Rather than assuring the buyer of quality, it not too subtly encouraged him to buy an inferior product and then to send good money after bad — to spend more on repairs and postage when the product should be dumped.

Nevertheless, the device has been so common that there is hardly an American who hasn't been influenced to one degree or another by the implied assurance of a guarantee that the manufacturer would stand behind his product.

Compare that guarantee with this, which is found on a highly popular brand of lawn-care product:

"If for any reason you are not satisfied with results after using this product, you are entitled to get your money back. Simply send us evidence of purchase and we will mail you a refund check promptly."

Note: No fancy language, no necessity to return the product, no limitations. In fact, the guarantee is little more than a simple, direct statement.

Understandably, not all guarantees can be so simply stated, but many can, and so it is no wonder that the Senate voted 76 to 2 this week to set up standards for guarantees, specifically that they be stated in "simple and readily understood language."

And while House approval still must be obtained before the Federal Trade Commission is empowered to establish fairness and clarity standards, it is odd in this age of consumerism that such obvious marketplace abuse was permitted to flourish.

To put it in perspective, the misleading guarantee is the equivalent of the exaggerated spiel of the door-to-door salesman of the monthly going-out-of-business sale, both of which are now largely regulated. And yet, the phony guarantee has often used the U.S. mails to communicate its message.

Curiously, the guarantee that isn't a guarantee has often been defended by legitimate businessmen. And, sadly, otherwise legitimate businesses have sometimes engaged in the practice.

On reflection, this may not be as curious as it sounds. The marketplace is still competitive, even if competition has been modified by the requirements of civilized behavior, by the monopoly power of some sellers and by government regulation.

Competition means that costs must be cut, and eventually some companies succumb to the temptation to lower their costs by cutting quality, that is, by concentrating on appearance at the expense of value.

The phony guarantee obviously is one way of doing this. Its lack of real value can be thoroughly disguised in legalese and grammatical convolutions so that what allegedly is an effort to be precise and to cover all possibilities is really an effort to be ambiguous and to avoid all eventualities.

If high standards are set for guarantees, hopefully it won't mean fewer guarantees, but that quality rather than deceit has been re-established as the criterion.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

On and off, my eyes become red and bloodshot without apparent reason. The redness disappears in a day. When it is gone, I forget about it and then worry about it only when it happens again. What are the causes for such a strange condition?

Mrs. D. K. B., Penna.

Dear Mrs. B.:

This cycle of events happens to a great many people with conditions other than those connected with the eye. The coming and going of signs and symptoms are major reasons why medical problems are sometimes neglected.

If I were to mention the important and unimportant reasons for red eyes, it would induce in you a great deal of unnecessary concern. Your problem may be a simple or complex one. Both deserve a complete eye examination.

Many eye drops sold over the counter and without a prescription can and do remove the redness of the eye. Such temporary and valueless effects add another reason why people fail to seek the eye examination and delay necessary treatment.

Redness of the eye may be associated with some defect in vision. Certainly this deserves study.

An abrasion of the cornea of the eye may be the cause of redness and, when overlooked, may be responsible for real trouble. Low grade infections by germs and viruses, early glaucoma, Herpes infection, and allergies are only some of the underlying causes for temporary or long-lasting redness of the eye.

Take your pick and guess if you like. How much wiser, however, it is to find the reason once and for all and remove it, cure it and cease worrying.

Is it possible to find out if the circulation to the hands and feet is normal? Even in mild weather, my feet are blue and cold.

Mr. M. C., Wis.

Dear Mr. C.:

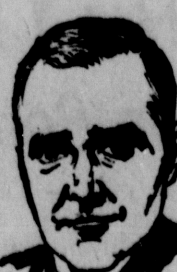

There are many excellent tests by which the blood flow to the tips of the feet and fingers can be measured. An instrument, the oscillometer, can actually measure the pulsation of the arteries to determine if the blood flow through them is normal.

Opaque dyes can be injected into the blood stream and followed with X-ray pictures to determine the cause of impaired circulation. Very delicate thermometers can measure the temperature of the feet. This is lowered in people who have poor circulation.

There are also many clinical ways that point to normal or inadequate circulation. These and other tests should be made on anyone who complains of coldness and blueness of the toes and cramps with the slightest exertion.

It is an interesting fact that people who are sensitive to tobacco actually can reduce the temperature of their toes by one degree after a single puff on a cigarette. Think about this if you are a smoker.

In 1974 the Kentucky Derby will be run for the 100th time.

Dump Nixon

By JEFFERY HART

A couple of months ago a score of conservative leaders assembled in New York City to consider the performance of the Nixon Administration. Dozen of them signed the now famous statement "suspending" support for Richard Nixon. At the time, such a formulation was about the mildest expression of disenchantment that could have been approved by the meeting.

A much more serious gathering is scheduled to take place in the very near future. Jerry Harkins, a longtime associate of Cliff White and a political professional of outstanding ability, has been surveying the situation around the country. The word is that this next meeting will involve an all-out effort to "dump Nixon."

The anti-Nixon conservatives do not believe they can deny Nixon renomination at San Diego, but they do think they can help to bring about his electoral demise in November. Among other things, the forthcoming discussion is expected to deal with a candidate to oppose Nixon in the New Hampshire primary, and a candidate who can torpedo Nixon's chances — such as they are — in New York State by running against him on the Conservative Party ticket in November.

The situation in New York State is piquant. During the last generation, New York has been liberal territory and not hospitable to Republican Presidential nominees. For five years, however, counter-trends have been developing. The ethnic groups have been breaking away from their Democratic roots and moving in the Republican and Conservative columns. In New York City, a majority of Jewish voters opposed John Lindsay's candidacy for mayor, a development unthinkable earlier. The White House, accordingly, has been casting hopeful eyes on New York. The joker, however, is the prospect of an anti-Nixon candidate on the Conservative line.

President Nixon, to be sure, has not by a long shot lost the support of all American conservatives. Barry Goldwater, Ronald Reagan and Spiro Agnew remain firmly aboard. Others, such as Sen. James Buckley, support the Administration more often than not. What Nixon has actually done is bring about a sharp division within the conservative movement. This, at least in the short run, weakens conservative leverage and so gives Nixon greater room for maneuverability. As one prominent conservative remarked to me, "If Hubert Humphrey had tried to impose wage-and-price controls or dump Taiwan, we'd have jumped all over him. He couldn't have done it."

But if Nixon has gained room for maneuver through the division among conservatives, he has also set in motion a sequence of events that will be difficult to control and could end by uniting conservatives against him.

The UN, to take only one example, has shown itself willing to appease Peking by expelling the Nationalists. To degree, Nixon has been able to deflect the widespread outrage from himself by co-opting it rhetorically and deploring the obscene glee of some of the UN delegates. Yet further appeasement is likely to occur when Peking demands that the UN rescind the "aggressor" label affixed to Peking during the Korean War. And even further appeasement will be probable when Peking proposes a UN resolution demanding the end of the "occupation" of Chinese territory — e.g., Taiwan.

Then will come the big one. "Israel is next," shouted one delegate indiscreetly after the Taiwan expulsion. In due course you can expect Peking to demand the expulsion of Israel as an "imperialist" state. By that time will rhetorical reproaches be enough for the Nixon Administration?

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman
CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

On Monday, the administration sponsored "Emergency School Aid Act" was defeated on the House floor. Proponents of the bill had added a provision intended to relieve problems incident to desegregation and reduce racial isolation in elementary and secondary schools. In other words, money was to be provided to effect integration by bussing school children.

One and a half million dollars over two years would be allocated for bussing with 90 percent of this total to be distributed to local districts in proportion to the number of minority children in the state. Funds included would be available for such projects as: special bi-lingual education, training for re-assigned teachers in human relations and intercultural understanding, and remedial classes for disadvantaged children to bring them up to the level of their new classmates.

The strong opposition focused on the absence of any provision prohibiting the use of these funds to finance school bussing. Several members felt that existing legislation was sufficient to meet the special demands of desegregation and that this bill was an unnecessary duplication of present resources.

The Higher Education Act is becoming more controversial every day. On Wednesday, the House refused to delete a provision to subsidize general college operating expenses. The formula for disbursing funds is based on the total fulltime enrollment with a bias toward small colleges and extra weight given to students above the sophomore level. Other amendments that would immediately stop funds from going to church-related institutions, if such subsidies were found to be unconstitutional were also rejected.

The House passed two bills to extend the methods and facilities available for the treatment of drug addicts. The first bill will permit the use of treatment methods that aim at controlling rather than eliminating the dependence of addicts on narcotics, the so-called methadone-maintenance program. This will allow counseling to concentrate on the underlying causes of addiction unhampered by the addict's preoccupation to find drugs to support his habit.

The second bill passed would require state correctional institutions to make provisions for treatment of drug addicts. Because of the high correlation between crime and drug addiction many previously unidentified addicts will eventually end up in state penal systems. In my opinion, it makes good sense to rehabilitate drug addicts while they are confined. This bill would enable the States to use funds from existing Federal programs for this purpose.

Conservationists should be aware of two diverse projects now being evaluated. The Environmental Protection Agency is continuing its review of the registration of uses of DDT. The final decision on the review is due on March 1972. In the relatively short meantime the presently permitted uses of DDT will be tolerated, offsetting the potential damage of using untested alternatives in lieu of total restriction.

The House of Representatives passed a sense of Congress concurrent resolution requesting the Secretary of State to call for an international moratorium of 10 years on the intentional killing of whales for commercial purposes. This would in effect remove the United States from the whaling industry. The near extinction of the larger species of whales necessitates a decisive step on the part of the United States. I supported both bills.

Morning Circle Program Concerns Island Of Cuba

The program for the Tuesday morning meeting of Morning Circle of Calvary United Methodist Church was about the country of Cuba. Mrs. Dale DeLong, president, presided during the meeting in the home of Mrs. James Salyers, 544 Edgewood Drive.

Members voted to contribute $75 to the Thanksgiving offering to the church. They were urged to attend the special services through Nov. 14 with the Rev. Irvin Lane of Columbus as the speaker.

A request was made for workers at the Clothing Center from 12:30 until 2 p.m. on Nov. 17th. It was announced that reading course books were still being circulated.

A letter from Red Bird Mission, Ky., was read expressing appreciation for the gift from the youth of the church. Mrs. Andrew Goeller distributed Thanksgiving offering containers for next year and explained how they were to be used.

Mrs. DeLong, who served as program leader, used as her topic "Cuba." An island just 92 miles from Key West, Fla.,

Cuba is 50 miles wide and 750 miles long, about the size of Ohio.

She said that there are churches in Cuba and a seminary, but has difficulties in surviving. Not until Cuba received its independence did missionaries go there. They now have what is known as a self governing church.

A skit entitled "What It Means To Be A Christian In Cuba" was presented by Mrs. Goeller, Mrs. Clark Zwyer and Mrs. Salyer. It told that the revolution in Cuba brought about more and better opportunities for schools, medical and other needed training.

Mrs. Francis Davis read Scripture from Psalm 100 and the Thank Offering was received. Mrs. DeLong said the closing prayer.

Refreshments of fruit salad, tea sandwiches, tea and coffee were served by the hostess.

The December meeting will combine the Morning and Evening Circles with Mrs. Russell Archer and Mrs. Ruth Speakman as hostesses and Marge Ward the program leader.

Donna Davis Honored With Bridal Shower

Miss Donna Davis was honored recently with a bridal shower by ladies from the Church of Christ, N. Court St. at the K of P hall in Stoutsville.

The honoree was seated at a table decorated with a pink and white umbrella and streamers as she opened her gifts.

Assisting Miss Davis at the refreshment table were Mrs. Denise Harter, Anita Karshner, Robin Karshner, Violet Clifton, Debbie Jerrel, Teresa Clifton, and Jerri Lyn Cassil. Judy Crist and Carolyn Arledge conducted games won by Phyllis Davis, Karel Marshall and Mrs. Claire Thomas.

Attending were Mrs. Lee Gross, Mrs. Violet Clifton and Teresa, Phyllis Davis, Lee Etta Young, Mrs. Karel Marshall, Mrs. Loraine Pittman, Carol Horsley, Mrs. Elsie Bartley, Mrs. Bonnie Massie, Mrs. Allie Carter, Irene Gibson, Mrs. Erma Iles,

Mrs. Carolyn Arledge, Mrs. Julia Willison, Mrs. Judy Berry, Mrs. Muriel Swiger, Michelle Horn, Mrs. Betty Shaw, Mrs. Norma Crist, Mrs. Grace Karshner, Robin and Anita, Mrs. Louise Davis, Mrs. Bernice Hammond, Mrs. Dee Crist, Mrs. Emma Ferguson, Mrs. Denise Harter, Mrs. Pat Stimpfle and Kim, Mrs. June Cassill and Jerri Lyn, Debbie Jerrell, Mrs. Don Moore, Mrs. Judy Crist and Mrs. Kenny Barker.

Sending gifts were Mrs. Mary Stout, Linda Harden, Mrs. Austin Davis, Mrs. Betty Bivens, Mrs. Pat Francis, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Willison, Charles Willison, Gary, Rich and Jimmy; Mrs. Phyllis Lambert, Mrs. Ray Crist.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, Mrs. Helen Short, Martha Garrett, Mrs. Goldie Lindsey, Mrs. Jo Woodward, Mrs. Jim Moorehead, Mrs. Rojer Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Helsel, Mrs. Kathy Curry, Mrs. Haylie Buchman, Mrs. Robert Albright and Mrs. Marshall Martin.

Martha Circle of Community United Methodist Church has planned a meeting for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the church parlor.

Junior Women's Club Elects 1972 Officers

Circleville Junior Women met recently at the home of Mrs. Donald Marquardt. Guests for the evening were Mrs. Thomas Bevan and Mrs. David Amy.

President, Mrs. Jean Holycross, presided over the business meeting. The most important item of business was election of officers for terms to begin January, 1972. Those elected are: president, Mrs. Ronald Lundberg, vice president, Mrs. John Farthing, recording secretary, Mrs. William Andersen, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Clark, treasurer, Mrs. Richard Gerhardt, historians, Mrs. James Stoneburner and Mrs. Jack Luce.

Following the business meeting, John Farthing spoke on the Pickaway Association for Mentally Retarded Children. He described his organization's function as that of educating the general public and raising funds for the further programs which assist the more than 700 mentally retarded children and adults in Pickaway County.

During the refreshment period which followed the speakers, gifts were on sale which were handmade by the blind under the auspices of the Bureau of Services for the Blind.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Donald Marquardt, Mrs. Glenn Wilson, Mrs. Jerry Jones and Mrs. William Andersen.

The next meeting will be on Dec. 2nd at the home of Mrs. Ronald Lundberg. Members are reminded to bring items for the Christmas auction.

Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Sells were the guest speaker's last Sunday at the United Methodist Church. They have been missionaries in Rhodesia, Africa for 42 years. They gave a very interesting talk about the people of Africa, the churches and the schools.

The Junior Choir sang a beautiful number "The Still Small Voice." At the door Nov. 14 will be Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neff, with Mrs. Sandy Beckman and Robin Melvin in charge of the nursery.

The Youth Choir plans a skating party and Wiener Roast for Saturday evening at the church at 6:30 p.m. All youth not in the choir are invited also. We need more cars with drivers. Please contact Mrs. Ruth Weber. Be sure to come to choir practice on Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. Also come out on Sunday morning to hear this little new choir.

The Mary Martha Class of the Methodist Church will hold their regular meeting Nov. 16 at 8 p.m. at the church.

Services are held at the Faith Baptist Church each Sunday, with Pastor Hohman bringing the morning message. Youth meeting is at 6 p.m., evening services at 7 p.m.

Each Wednesday evening at 6:30 p.m. the youth choir practice is at the Church under the direction of Mrs. Terry Little.

Saturday Youth Rally will be at 6 p.m. The young people will meet at the church to take the bus to Memorial Baptist Church in Columbus. Evangelist Paul Dixon will be the speaker.

Special meetings last week were a success.

The Ladies' Missionary meeting will be held Mon. Nov. 15th at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Vickery near Duvall.

Casualties In Viet War Dip As Withdrawal Continues

SAIGON (AP) — Casualties in the Vietnam war last week were the lowest in months in all categories except the totals for American dead, the allied commands reported today. And the American death totals were increased by fatalities which actually occurred prior to the week of Oct. 31-Nov. 6.

The low casualty levels reflected a general lull in battle-field action as well as the continuing withdrawal of American forces from combat.

The U.S. Command reported eight Americans killed in combat, 13 wounded and 33 dead from nonhostile causes. The total wounded was the smallest in more than 6½ years.

The U.S. Command also announced that an Army helicopter gunship was shot down Wednesday night 11 miles south-east of Khe Sanh, and two crewmen were wounded. It was the 8,016th U.S. aircraft reported lost in Indochina.

U.S. fighter-bombers flying from bases in Thailand are already providing tactical air support for the South Vietnamese army in a preview of the war as it will be fought after most U.S. ground combat forces are withdrawn from Vietnam.

American fighter-bombers flew 1,156 combat strikes in support of the big South Vietnamese operation along the Cambodian border last month, it was learned today, and at least 25 to 30 per cent of the planes came from the bases in Thailand.

Nearly a third of the strikes required special navigational and radar equipment to guide the planes through the low clouds that often prevailed. The South Vietnamese air force doesn't have this all-weather bombing capability.

Four U.S. fighter-bomber squadrons are still in Vietnam from a high of 21 in 1968. In Thailand, the United States has about eight squadrons of super-sonic F4s, several squadrons of other fighter-bombers, light bombers and gunships, and its B52 strategic bombers.

Pizza eaters and slumber partyers were Faith Ann Picklesimer, Martha Haller, Diane Noble, Susie Welsh, Teresa Graffis and Kathy Schleich. It would never do to tell what time they finally settled for slumber. But there were few chores done at the respective girls' homes on Saturday since the fun fest was held Friday night. Marvie baby and Dolly, parents of Shirley, weren't too bright eyed Saturday either. By the way, speaking of my Marvie baby, let me take this moment to say Thanks and it made my day to see my aunt Josephine Downs. You see, she told her nephew she enjoyed the column. I enjoy kind words and right now I can really use them.

The first snowfall of the season took on an extra special meaning for the Easterday family this year since our new son, Fernando, had never seen snow ever before and what a delight it was to see the excited expression on his face and the amazement. Brother Marc and his friends, John Greene, Alan Christopher, Chuck and John Graffis involved Fernando in a good old American snowballing that he thoroughly enjoyed. What a privilege and pleasure it is for us to have our Fernando. How differently we observe the matter of fact occurrences when seeing them from his view. His command of the English language is limited but improving each day; however, we have discovered that language is really no communication barrier where true affection exists as well as patience and tolerance in abundant amounts. For those who may not be aware, Fernando is an exchange student from Quito, Ecuador, living with us and attending Westfall as a senior this year.

From the desk of Honorable Guidance Counselor Ed Holmes comes a message concerning the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery which is a series of nine tests designed to measure the aptitude of high school students in occupations common in the military services. The nine test scores are combined to give five composite scores which have relatively high validity (.55-.75) in predicting probable success in the following areas: (a) Electronics; (b) General Mechanical; (c) Motor Mechanical; (d) Clerical Administrative and (e) General Technical. The time required to complete an ASVAB test session is approximately 2 hours and 30 minutes. Tests, answer sheets and pencils are furnished. There is no cost to school or students. The tests will be administered at Circleville High School on Friday, Dec. 3, 8:30 a.m. until 11:00 a.m. and any Senior Westfall boy and girl interested should contact Thespian Ed soon as possible. I use the description thespian since he is applying the grease paint of the theater and is a member of the cast of Roundtown Players production "South Pacific." He has tickets to sell, too.

TOPS queen of the week at Williamsport this past Monday night was our own leader, Rosie (Mrs. Oscar) Atwood. The two weeks before the title was held by Doris Cornwell Ferguson (Mrs. Leon, that is). A new contest is in progress that should provide a lot of incentive for weight loss. Each member is to contribute a handmade Christmas item. For weight lost between now and Dec. 20 a member will be given play money. On Dec. 20 the items will be auctioned and of course the member with the most weight lost will have the most money to buy.

Now, to entice my fellow TOPS members with a scrumptious, mouth watering, calorie loaded Peanut Butter Pie recipe. Try it — you will "love" it, I promise.

1 package instant vanilla pudding
1 cup milk
1 package Dream Whip
1 tablespoon peanut butter (smooth or crunchy)
1 baked pie shell (or, a graham cracker crust)

Prepare Dream Whip according to instructions on package. Set aside. Mix instant pudding and milk (blender is good to use — takes just a quickie). Now fold Dream Whip and pudding mixture and peanut butter together. Pour into pie shell. Chill until well set. Eat and enjoy. More or less peanut butter can be used. It depends on individual tastes. Crushed peanuts sprinkled lightly on top of pie is good, too. Grated chocolate is another goodie.

Thought for the Week: We must say thanks that the road north of our village leading to Westfall has been somewhat corrected from what it was but one can't help but ponder why the same road (Chillicothe-Williamsport) south of town is beautifully paved with a nice white center stripe and just recently done, too. Ten to one says there is way more traffic north to Westfall than south to where ever, but this follows the trend of the times — overlook the majority and more common sense way of doing things. Hang in there folks — someday, somehow, somewhere, someone will know and care.

P.S. Nearly blew it again! It was the highlight of our weekend to have as guests, Dwight and Marina Hall of Huntington, W. Va. and precious Grandma Hardman (Mrs. Earl) of Chillicothe. Marina speaks

Italian fluently and it was interesting for Fernando and her respective native tongue (he were the same in their to compare how many words speaks Spanish).

Emmett Chapel Church Slates Missionaries

PAUL HAINES JR.

Missionaries from Korea will be the speakers for special services at Emmett Chapel United Methodist Church Nov. 19-21 beginning 7:30 each evening.

Paul W. Haines Jr., veteran missionary of the Oriental Missionary Society in Korea was born and reared in Korea, the son of missionary parents. After college and missionary training he returned to Korea where he has served three four-year terms as a missionary evangelist. He will tell of Korea's tragic war days and valiant comeback.

Everett Hunt is on leave of absence from his preaching assignment at Seoul Theological Seminary and is pursuing graduate studies at the University of Chicago Divinity School.

Carol Ferguson Hunt first went to Korea in 1958 with her husband as a fulltime staff member of the OMS. With current emphasis on travel and firsthand viewing of the world's mission fields, the ministry of hospitality has become an increasingly important part of her missionary home.

Heck's To Build Discount Store South Of Circleville

Heck's, West Virginia's rapidly expanding Charleston-based discount chain, announced today plans to open a new Heck's Discount Department Store here.

Lancaster realtor, Gail Wacker, owner of Wacker Development Co. on 23 just south of Circleville confirms this announcement by Heck's. The new store will be located next to the Covered Wagon Steak House. This area already includes a Texaco Service Station, Quality Farm and Fleet Store, Covered Wagon Steak House, Quality Motel, L-K Restaurant, Sunoco Station, a Tri-County Farm Bureau Office Building (now under construction) and a Stuckey's Store.

Wacker stated that he still has some 20 acres of commercial land for developing into a complete shopping area to be known as Plaza Shopping Center. Wacker also confirmed that he is building a comparable store for Heck's in a new shopping center in Lancaster.

Excavation is expected to begin immediately on the 43,000 square foot, full-line discount store which will employ approximately 70 people with an annual payroll of more than $300,000. Store personnel will be recruited locally, with the exception of the manager, assistant manager and various department heads.

NINETY-TWO departmental classifications to stock the new store will include nationally famous brands of clothing, sporting goods, hardware, houseware, toys, health and beauty aids as well as small appliances and electronics.

A Heck's strong point is the company's wide selection of merchandise by General Electric, Remington, Sunbeam, Hamilton Beach, Clairol, Polaroid, Kodak, Norelco, Wilson, Zebco, Johnson and others at great discount prices. Soft goods will provide selections of men and boys wear, women and children's clothing and domestic items.

All departments follow a scheme of design to facilitate more and better planned areas for merchandise, display and convenience of shopping for the customer and feature a greater variety of merchandise, more diversity in styles and larger quantities from which to make a better choice.

Heck's began business in 1959

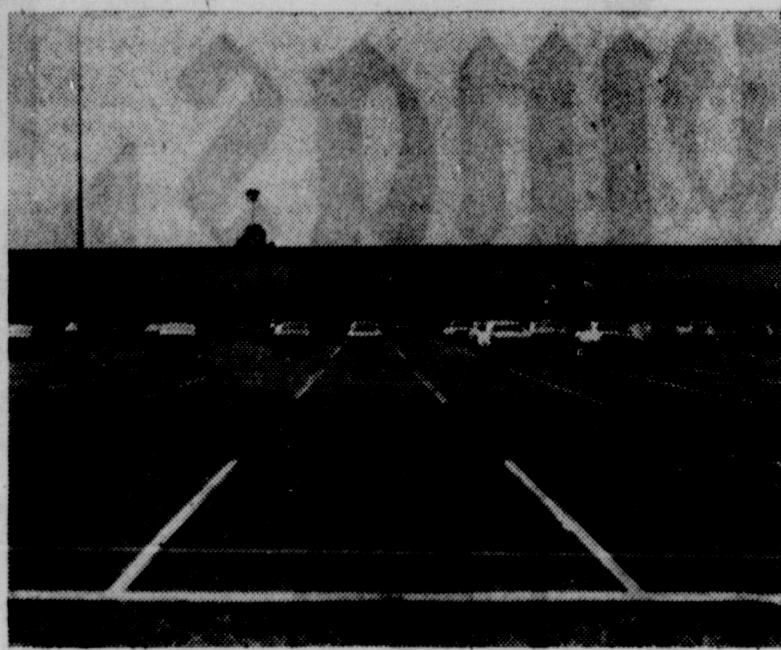

WIBC Meet Studies Internal Reports

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Directors of the Women's International Bowling Congress meet here Monday to consider reports from its legislative, hall of fame and building committees.

It could be the last annual midseason meeting of the board in Columbus, since the organization's national headquarters is being moved to the Milwaukee area to share facilities with the American Bowling Congress.

NEW STORE — Heck's, a discount chain, will build a store south of Circleville on the Wacker Development Co. owned Plaza Shopping Center. The new department store will be 274 feet wide and 184 feet deep. The store will be located between the Covered Wagon Steak House and Fram Fleet Supply Store.

with a small store in Charleston, W. Va. The corporation now has 19 discount stores with six more under construction. Expansion and growth have added Woodrum's Home Furnishings Co., the largest furniture and home furnishing department store in W. Va.; Galperin Music Co. of Charleston, W. Va.; Loewenstein and Sons, Charleston, W. Va., distributors of toys, sporting goods, houseware and hardware; 11 Village Dress Shops in Ohio; 8 B. Goodman Ladies Specialty Shops in Ohio and more recently 17 Lory's

Dress Shops in Florida.

In 1969 Heck's acquired two Pittsburgh, Pa. based wholesale distributors, the Tauberg Company, distributors of nationally known housewares and small appliances and Harris and Frank, Inc., a wholesale distributor of auto supplies and accessories.

Heck's brief history encompasses leaps from a one store, W. Va. owned and operated company to listing on the American Stock Exchange and anticipated sales of $65,000,000 this year. The company employs about 1,500 employees.

Senate Panel Holds Meet On Powell, Rehnquist Bids

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee was called into closed session today to consider President Nixon's Supreme Court nominees, but no vote is expected for a week.

The committee's hearings on the nominations of William H. Rehnquist, a top aide to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, and Lewis F. Powell Jr., a millionaire Richmond, Va., lawyer, ended late Wednesday.

While Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he hoped to report both nominations favorably to the Senate at today's meeting, committee rules allow any member to force a seven-day delay.

And, Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., a member of the committee's liberal bloc, said that if no one else did, he would invoke the rule to prevent a vote on Rehnquist's nomination.

Tunney said he is prepared to approve the nomination of Powell but had not decided how he would vote on Rehnquist, who has run into sharp opposition from civil rights and labor leaders.

"Why should we rush to a quick decision?" asked Tunney. "Why not wait a week?"

Tunney and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., another committee member who says he has reservations about Rehnquist, have said the committee appears ready to approve both nominees if a vote is taken immediately.

As for the full Senate, Eastland has predicted confirmation.

Powell, 64, has been nominated to succeed the late Hugo L. Black on the court, while Rehnquist, 47, would replace John M. Harlan. The two seats have been vacant since early September.

Among 17 witnesses testifying Wednesday at the committee's concluding hearing were representatives of the AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers Union who opposed Rehnquist's nomination but not Powell's. The same position had been taken the day before by spokesmen for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

Dayton School Levy Backed By Gilligan

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Gov. John Gilligan came to Dayton today to campaign for voter approval of a 10.5 - mill additional tax levy which would permit reopening of city schools.

Gilligan was to appear at a noon rally on the courthouse steps with U.S. Rep. Charles Whalen and Mayor James McGee.

McGee has proclaimed Friday, the day the levy request is on the ballot, as "School Destiny Day" in Dayton.

Dayton schools were closed a week ago after the district ran out of operating funds. They must remain closed until January unless additional money is forthcoming.

Voters last week approved renewal of a 13.6-mill levy, but they also must pass the new operating levy in order for the system to borrow state money.

If the levy passes Friday, officials say schools will reopen Monday. If the levy fails, it will be put to voters again Dec. 14.

While in Dayton today Gilligan also was to address an Urban Crime Conference and speak on the problems of higher education at Wright State University.

Link Drug To Cancer In Women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said today that a synthetic hormone linked to cancer should not be given to pregnant women.

The agency said its decision is based on studies strongly suggesting that DES—or diethylstilbestrol—caused vaginal cancer in daughters of women who took the drug during pregnancy to prevent miscarriages.

A proposed labeling regulation published in the Federal Register advises physicians not to prescribe DES for pregnant women.

The labels on DES and related drugs, such as diestrol, hexestrol, benzetrol, and promephestrol would read:

"A statistically significant association has been reported between maternal ingestion during pregnancy of DES and the occurrence of vaginal carcinoma (cancer) in the offspring."

The suggested label goes on to say that use of DES or any closely related similar substances is not advised during pregnancy.

Pickaway Grange

NEBRASKA GRANGE

Nebraska Grange met Tuesday evening in the Grange Hall with Worthy Master Ray Noecker presiding. It was announced that Mrs. Jean Crites placed first in the Art Contest at the Ohio State Grange Annual Meeting and her painting would be in competition at the National Grange Session in Charleston, W. Va.

Brother Edward Crites, Youth Chairman, announced that the chartered bus going to National Grange November 13 still has some vacancies if anyone is interested in attending part of the National Grange and seeing the Seventh Degree exemplified.

Insurance Gant, Brother Carl Bennett made a few comments and Brother Joseph Peters presented the Auditing Committee's report. An appeal for aid was answered from Booster Grange, Muskingum County.

It was reported that Mrs. Kenneth Reigel was in the hospital and Mrs. Jessie Buskirk was convalescing at home.

Mrs. Florence Wharton was installed as Pomona and Roger Schneider was installed Assistant Steward by the Worthy Master assisted by Joseph Peters, Edward Crites and Mrs. Hazel Peters.

The program was conducted by Worthy Lecturer, Joseph C. Peters. Mr. Bennett gave the Thanksgiving Proclamation issued by President Washington in 1789. Roll call was answered by members giving projects and suggestions they would like for the Grange to do this coming year and the Master listed plans which he would like to see accomplished during this Grange year. Thanksgiving poems were enjoyed.

The next regular meeting on Dec. 7 will be the annual Christmas party. A gift exchange will be held and each family is requested to bring cookies. Serving on the December committee will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sark, J. Arthur Sark, Mr. and Mrs. David Dill and Lois and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Hoffines.

Delicious seasonal refreshments were enjoyed in the dining room served by the November Committee, Mrs. Fred W. Hedges, Mrs. Hazel Peters and the Walter Henderson family.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a day to spend time on the varied details required in order to put all of your affairs on a more solid and secure structure. Consider items you often neglect and wind them up in a precise fashion, thus gaining deserved respect.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Start early with whatever duties are at hand, whether in business or at home. A little gift to those who deserve it can bring much goodwill. Relax with mate in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You need only to improve your appearance to make this a happy and productive day instead of just the opposite. Repay social obligations. Making plans for the future is fine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend to duties that have to be done, whether at home or out of the home and establish more harmony. It can be fun if you yourself. Remove clutter around you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Put aside anything of a frivolous nature and engage in practical matters that mean so much. Talk over with associates how to be mutually more efficient.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study your financial position so that you know exactly what you can invest in the near future. Listen to the suggestions of a wise business expert. Follow them. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Showing little courtesies to good pals and associates brings fine results now. Don't neglect to improve your appearance. Take more interest in civic affairs. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) In the quiet of your study make a new and better plan for the future and then consult with experts on it. Don't neglect to extend a favor to one who has been very good to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) See what part you can play in a new project that good friends are interested in. This could turn out to be enjoyable and profitable. Meet with a friend and reach a better understanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take care of an outside chore which you do not like, but which is necessary if you are to derive benefits. Find implements that make life and work easier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do necessary studying that will help you understand a new plan much better. New contacts have a good idea they want you to go along with. Do so. Relax in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You would do well to put recreations aside and get down to handling responsibilities that are most important. Come to a good understanding with mate. Let it be teamwork.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to May 20) If you want to come to a better understanding with an associate, you have to show you can keep promises. Listening to what others say is wise. Show kindness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who likes to study every detail of a new situation. There is a desire to attain perfection in everything, and while it may seem unnecessary it is the very thing that will place your youngster at the top of the heap in life. The road may be longer, but the fortune will be greater. Give good religious training early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

How Weather Looks Today

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Following is the Ohio weather summary from the National Weather Service:

A warming trend continued over Ohio, despite the arrival of a weak cold front over northern counties overnight. Cloudy skies were general in the north and a few snow flurries were reported in Youngstown around Midnight.

The front was forecast to push south into the central counties by late this afternoon, causing cloudiness and a few more flurries.

Highs in the 40s and 50s were forecast, compared with readings in the 30s and low 40s Wednesday. Lows this morning ranged from 27 at Toledo to 39 at Cleveland.

Sunshine and mild weather are forecast Friday, with highs in the 50s and low 60s. Overnight lows will be in the mid to upper 30s.

Another cold front pushing toward Ohio from the west is expected to bring showers Saturday, continuing in the northeast Sunday.

FORECASTS

OHIO — Variable cloudiness an cold tonight. Lows in the 30s. Increasing cloudiness and warmer Friday. Highs in the 50s north and 50s to low 60s south.

WEST CENTRAL, CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL — Cloudy tonight. Lows in the mid 30s. Variable cloudiness and warmer Friday. Highs in the 50s.

SOUTHWEST, SOUTHEAST — Partly cloudy tonight. Lows in the mid to upper 30s. Variable cloudiness and warmer Friday. Highs in the upper 50s and low 60s.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA — Partly cloudy and cold tonight. Lows from the mid 20s to mid 30s. Not as cool Friday. Partly cloudy skies south and mostly cloudy skies with a few showers north.

WEST VIRGINIA — Mostly clear and cool tonight. Lows in the 30s. Partly cloudy and mild Friday. Highs in the upper 40s and 50s.

KENTUCKY — Clear tonight. Lows from the mid 30s to low 40s. Sunny and slightly warmer Friday. Highs from 60 to 70.

Huge Changes Possible For United Nations?

Editor's Note—In some eyes, the United Nations at age 26 is suffering from hardening of the arteries. Proponents of Peking argue that its entry, in effect bringing a quarter of mankind to the world forum, will give the United Nations a new bill of health. But as William L. Ryan reports in this article, last of a series, the situation goes deeper than that.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

(AP) — For the deeply troubled United Nations, a time of uncertainty lies ahead—a time, perhaps, of shocking change.

Will the world organization survive all its ailments, or will it go the way of its predecessor League of Nations and die a lingering death?

Ask the question in this big glass house overlooking New York's East River and the reply invariably is: "What else is there?"

Ahead are awesome problems with the destiny of humanity hanging in the balance. These are not only questions of war or peace. They include challenges of pollution, of exploding population, of dwindling resources, of seeking wider distribution of the world's wealth.

"We are definitely entering into a new phase in the history of the United Nations," says Cyrus R. Vance, who heads the policy studies committee of the U.N. Association of the U.S.A. "This is an absolutely critical time to try to make the organization what it must be if this is going to be the kind of world it should be."

Vance, former U.S. ambassador at the Vietnam peace talks in Paris, told an interviewer: "One thing we must face up to—and particularly large countries like the United States—is that we cannot have a strong United Nations if it is continually teetering on the verge of bankruptcy."

Bankruptcy is only one threat to the organization's health. It suffers from being frequently bypassed by its members in time of crisis, from neglect and sometimes even scorn from its members, from pessimism about its effectiveness, and now from worry engendered by the uncertainty surrounding Red China's entry as a member wielding the power of veto.

Often in the past delegates here have been told that a basic weakness of the United Nations was the fact that China, with a quarter of humanity, was not represented.

Now that complaint is to be put to the test.

"China," says J. Russell Wiggins, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, "probably will confront the United Nations with many difficulties."

For example, China may insist on sitting in on Middle East talks, up to now the province of the Russians, Americans, British and French. Apart from demanding a weighty voice on major issues, Peking is apt to demand strong representation on the secretariat and a big say in the selection of the next secretary-general.

Its admission brings with the U.N. walls a new dimension to what for 26 years had been a two-sided contest between superpowers. Peking claims to speak for smaller and poorer nations, sometimes called the Third World. This promises new difficulties apart from the implicit three-cornered rivalry.

Irritation with that Third World role in the General Assembly has provoked painful outcry in Washington, brought calls to slash the American financial contribution, and raised demands for reconstructing the U.N. Charter.

Even its best friends admit that the structure is far from perfect. What worries some people here is that U.S. disenchantment might revive isolationist sentiment of the sort that contributed to the death of the League of Nations, which the United States never joined.

What are the chances of pumping new health into the United Nations?

Vance says it would be unrealistic now to try to make any fundamental changes in the charter. But he sees a possibility of attacking some of the problems along the lines of proposals made by a panel in a recent study under his association's auspices.

On the minutiae—There might be a new membership category created by the Security Council giving small new members "associate" nonvoting status. This would relieve them of assessments while permitting them to have observers at all sessions. The status could not be made retroactive for present members, but might attract some to whom the assessments are burdensome.

On finances—If necessary, there should be a special General Assembly session to deal solely with this problem. Without its solution, the panel feels, an insolvent United Nations will be incapable of effective peace action.

On peacekeeping—The Security Council might be strengthened by formation of a coalition of U.N. members willing in advance to carry out any resolution the council adopts unanimously. Also recommended is a fact-finding council which would supply all pertinent data in any crisis area, permitting rapid response.

Most of the organization's well-wishers concede there are no ready cures to all the ailments and that the organization's health ultimately must depend on the good will of its powerful members.

More Soup Said Unfit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Nearly 400 cans of soup manufactured by Bon Vivant Soup, Inc., and sold under other labels are unfit for human consumption, according to a petition filed by federal attorneys in U.S. District Court here.

One petition filed Wednesday asks the seizure of 325 cans of vichy-soise soup and cream of leek and potato under the S.S. Pierce Red Label name at the Firelands Country Store in Amherst in Lorain County.

Another asks the seizure of 73 cans of Pennsylvania Dutch soup, both of the Philadelphia Snapper and Crab Bisque variety sold to Kehman's store in Westlake.

Bon Vivant of Newark, N.J., went bankrupt this year after a New York man died after eating the company vichysoise, which was alleged to contain botulism.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Donald Weisberger said the U.S. Food & Drug Administration requested the food be seized since Bon Vivant has been ordered off the market.

Tigers Conclude Grid Season Against Athens

The final curtain comes down on the 1971 grid season Friday night when Circleville hosts a strong Athens eleven.

The Bulldogs with a record of 8-1 are co-champions of the South Eastern Ohio League and are ranked 15th in the Associated Press state ratings.

The only blemish on the Athens' record came from a 28-7 loss to a powerful Ironton squad.

Big, strong and powerful describes the Bulldogs who play a ball control type game. They like to come at the opposition and wear them down.

OFFENSIVELY the Bulldogs move from a Full House and Wing T offense directed by a good ball handling quarterback who can put the ball in the air when needed.

Power at the fullback spot and speed at the halfbacks are the key factors in Athens' running attack.

The Bulldogs utilize an Oklahoma defense with good strength up front and at the linebacksers posts.

Circleville's defense will get a real test against the running of Athens but can be tough when needed.

The key to the ball game will be the offensive effort of the Tigers. They will have to move the ball to counteract the ball control tactics of the Bulldogs.

Seniors making their last appearance for the Red and Black will be Jeff Harr, Malcolm Wilkins, Tom Shea, Terry Leasure, Marc Warner, Richie Speakman, Mike

Frank Pitts Set For Tilt With Chiefs

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Wide receiver Frank Pitts, who will get the starting call for the Cleveland Browns against the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday, says his knowledge of the players on his former team could help him.

The speedy receiver says he is "really looking forward" to playing against his old teammates.

Pitts replaces Gary Collins on the right side and will be facing cornerback Jim Marshall, who was rated by some polls as top rookie of the year in the American Football Conference in 1969.

Pitts, who came to the Browns this year for a draft choice, was with the Chiefs for six seasons, but said he didn't see very much of Marshall because he (Pitts) was "on the left most of the time with Kansas City and would only see Marshall in certain formations at practice."

"He likes to play the bump and run," Pitts recalled. "Jim is quick and has pretty good speed."

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Don't bet the family jewels on the Romanians in the 19th World Cup Golf Championships. A three-legged horse in the Kentucky Derby has a better chance.

Walt Alston Back Again With Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walter Alston, who has survived seventh-place finishes and annual predictions of dismissal to outlast all other active major league managers with the same club, will be back next year for his 19th season with the Dodgers.

The gray-haired, unflappable pilot, who will be 60 Dec. 1, was given his 19th one-year contract Wednesday.

Terms weren't announced, but a team spokesman said Alston was "a safe bet" to be making more than his 1971 salary, which was believed to be between $60,000 and $70,000.

He succeeded Charlie Dressen at the helm of the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1954 after Dressen had differed with management about the length of his contract. Alston has never asked for more than a one-year pact.

"I'm satisfied, and I hope they are," he says.

This year's Dodgers, who Alston said included "more rookies than I've ever had before," trailed division-leading San Francisco by eight games entering September but surged to within one game at the finish.

The performance earned him National League Manager of the Year honors from The Associated Press for the fifth time.

Alston will set a longevity record for Dodger managers next year, eclipsing the 18-year tenure of Wilbert Robinson from 1914 to 1931.

He'll also tie the Chicago Cubs' Cap Anson (1879-1897) for third place on the all-time list of managing one team, behind Connie Mack and John McGraw.

Bucks Stop Atlanta, Win 116-110

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
They called him Mr. A when he led UCLA to three straight national collegiate basketball championships.

Now a star in the National Basketball Association with the champion Milwaukee Bucks the 7-foot-2 Kareem Jabbar, formerly known as Lew Alcindor, has been tagged as a "big safety valve."

Cotton Fitzsimmons, coach of the Phoenix Suns, used that appellation for Jabbar when he scored 44 points in leading the Bucks from behind to beat the Suns Tuesday night. Jabbar did it again Wednesday night getting 33 points as the Bucks erased an 11-point deficit to beat Atlanta 116-110.

Cincinnati downed the New York Knicks 99-85. Chicago tripped Baltimore 125-106, Detroit routed Portland 139-122, Los Angeles crushed Philadelphia 143-103 and Boston overwhelmed Houston 142-103 in other NBA games.

Lou Hudson of Atlanta outscored Jabbar with 41 points, but as Fitzsimmons put it "the Bucks play with confidence when they're behind." It was Milwaukee's 12th victory against one defeat so far this season.

Major Prep Grid Games In Big, Little Loops

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio high school football games of the week are in Class AAA and A after the Class AA division was in the spotlight a week ago.

Warren Harding, top ranked in Class AAA and shooting for its first perfect season in history, visits No. 6 Niles McKinley to settle the All-American Conference crown Friday night.

There's another big one in Class AAA. Seventh-ranked Canton McKinley awaits eighth-ranked Massillon in their annual neighborhood grudge match Saturday afternoon.

Then Saturday night, two of the state's three leading Class A squads, No. 2 Portsmouth Notre Dame and No. 3 Newark Catholic, close out the season in Portsmouth.

A week ago Steubenville Catholic, No. 1 in Class AA, took apart No. 4 Youngstown North 31-0 in that division's game of the year.

Around Ohio:

The three Warren powers have a chance to post a 28-2 mark, their best record in six years of three high schools in the Trumbull County city. Harding goes for a 10-0 mark at Niles, Kennedy a 10-0 record at Howland and Western Reserve an 8-2 figure at home against Lorain Southview.

In the Akron City Series semifinals Friday night, unbeaten Garfield faces Ellet after Kenmore and Central-Hower play in the opener in the Rubber Bowl. Kenmore has trimmed Garfield in the title game the last two seasons.

Dayton Kiser, with a 6-2 mark, posted its best record since the 1944 squad that was 7-1-1.

Frankfort Adena senior Dwight Pettiford has averaged 11.5 yards per carry this fall and has 252 points and 3,633 rushing yards in his career.

Elyria's Ike Maxwell rolled up 230 yards against Mansfield Senior last week. Mansfield Malabar's Tim Schmidt has a school record 1,055 ground yards in 1971.

Warren Harding's Glen Ser-nulka, has rushed 140 times without losing a yard this season. He has 710 yards. Newark Catholic has won 50 of its last 52 games, Portsmouth Notre Dame 23 in a row.

Tecumseh, without football last year because of financial woes, has staged a strong comeback. The Arrows had only one tie in their first four games, but won the last five for their first Mad River Valley title since 1962.

Eastern, located near Reeds-ville in Meigs County, finished 9-0-0 for its first unbeaten season since a 1955 consolidation. The team averaged 38.4 points and allowed 2.0 points.

Jewett Scio's first year of consolidation was a beauty — 7-0-2. In the final game Scio beat Cadiz 14-12, another consolidation, for Cadiz' lone setback. The two also played to a 6-6 tie in the third game of the season.

Bob Haught needs 101 yards for Irondale Stanton Local Friday night to rush one mile for the year. He has 1,659 yards. Last year he collected 1,694 rushing yards.

Austintown Fitch is the eighth Class AAA team AA Steubenville Catholic will have played this year. The only AA foe was Youngstown North, which lost its perfect record to Catholic last week.

Marion Pleasant has wrapped up its third straight unbeaten campaign, winning an unprecedented third North Central Conference title in a row. End Terry King has set a school receiving record of 419 yards this fall.

Banks Won't Manage Cubs Even If Durocher Goes

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Maybe Leo Durocher won't manage the Chicago Cubs in 1972, but neither will Mr. Cub, Ernie Banks.

Owner Phil Wrigley erased Banks, a Cub playing star since 1953, as potential successor to controversial Durocher "because I'm too fond of Ernie to make him manager of anything."

Banks, 40, in the twilight of a great major league career all spent with the Cubs, long has been mentioned as a possibility to become the first black manager in the major leagues.

The 65-year-old Durocher apparently is on the ropes after six Cub seasons, but Wrigley Wednesday made it clear that if Leo is dumped, Banks won't be his successor.

"Managing is a dirty job, it doesn't last long and it certainly isn't anything I would wish on Banks who is headed for baseball's Hall of Fame," the 75-year-old Wrigley told the Associated Press.

"Furthermore, I think Banks wouldn't take a managerial job."

Wrigley, who last Sept. 3 took out ads in all Chicago papers giving Durocher 1971 vote of confidence, now is vague about Durocher's 1972 status.

"I talked on the phone the other day to Durocher who is in Arizona and I told him I wanted to meet with him when he returns to Chicago which he said would in a week or 10 days," said Wrigley.

The chewing gum magnate, whose hiring of long-idle Durocher after the 1965 season was no more startling than Wrigley's ill-fated college of coaches, declined to say whether the vis-a-vis with Leo meant his dismissal.

"I don't know how I will talk to Leo," said Wrigley.

The guess that Banks would succeed Durocher got its latest prompting when Joe Amalfitano, Cub coach and a Durocher pet, resigned Tuesday.

But today, the Cubs signed another former Durocher protégé, Larry Jansen, 11-season San Francisco Giant coach, as pitching coach. Jansen was a star pitcher two decades ago for the New York Giants managed by Durocher.

Banks has player-coach status with the Cubs on a staff which also includes Al Spangler and Peanuts Lowrey, with Amalfitano's spot to be filled.

Georgia Grid Pilot's Wife Admits To Case Of Nerves

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — While football coaches suffer frayed nerves during weekend mayhem, what do their wives do? Apparently they go quietly to pieces in the wings.

Take Barbara Dooley, wife of the University of Georgia's Coach Vince Dooley. She's convinced that she may have to take her first tranquilizer ever before the Auburn game Saturday.

"I'm so nervous about the Auburn game Saturday that I don't think I can stand it," she said. She's not sure she'll last that long.

"I may start biting my fingernails before the week is over. Generally, when I get real nervous, I cry and itch and I'm already doing that."

"Monday night, right in the middle of the night, I woke up thinking about that game and I shook Vince and yelled, 'It's only five more days,' she said in an interview.

The dark-haired Mrs. Dooley says she had to take the telephone off the hook, but callers "seem to think I've got ten million (tickets) to give away."

She said a woman from Mac-on called and told her she had cancer and was dying and her last dying requests was tickets to this game. "And she didn't want just one. She wanted to bring a friend with her," said Mrs. Dooley, incredulously.

"Another lady called from somewhere in South Carolina and claimed she met Vince 15 years ago. She thought this would get her some tickets."

"I asked her that if I had some and let her have them, who she'd yell for and she said, 'Auburn, of course.' Now that took the cake."

The mother of four says the "whole town has gone stark crazy about this game. This is all they talk about. I'm not going to read another line in any newspaper. That just makes it worse. And I've told Vince not to tell me anymore about the game."

She says people can't tell from her husband's appearance whether he's nervous or not. But she says, "He's got to be nervous. Let's face it. They're working so hard. But they're being working so hard all year. I really haven't seen all that much of him since August.

"But he will never come close to being as nervous as me. After all, when you see your paycheck running up and down that field you have to be nervous."

Patterson Misses Plane, Gets Fine

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Rookie forward Steve Patterson of the Cleveland Cavaliers has been fined by Head Coach Bill Fitch for missing the team's flight to Seattle where the Cavs open a five-game road swing tonight.

Fitch said Patterson missed the morning flight and, in addition to the fine, would have to pay his own way to the West Coast. A club spokesman said the former UCLA pivotman caught a late afternoon flight Wednesday.

Royals Are Happy; Top Knicks, 99-85

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Royals climbed to the Central Division lead of the National Basketball Association Wednesday night and pushed the 1970 Champion New York Knicks into a tie for last in the Atlantic Division winning 99-85.

The Royals, however, have only a 4-7 record and the Knicks are 6-8.

"It was the best game I've played all year," said guard Nate Archibald.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The public has turned sour on the baseball and football magnates," said veteran Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y.

"They keep moving men hither and thither like pawns over a chess board. They are possessed by greed."

"They traffic in athletic franchises like Wall Street brokers traffic in stock," added Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. "Their attitude is one of public be damned."

"People are getting fed up with the owners," insisted Sen.

Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash. "If we had a plebiscite, I think the fans would throw the lot of them out."

The mood in Congress is dark and forboding over the phenomenal growth and thrust of big time professional sports. Men in key legislative posts paint it as a ballooning monster with an insatiable appetite for spectator dollars—cold and heartless, spreading its tentacles to all parts of the nation.

"It's a cold-blooded, money-grabbing situation," argued Rep. B. F. Sisk, D-Calif. "To some owners, the dollar sign is becoming bigger than the fans—it's the guiding light of their operation."

"We in Congress are obligated to do something about it."

Sisk is one of several members of the House of Representatives sponsoring legislation to put baseball under anti-trust laws and to apply some governmental restraints to all major professional sports, including football and basketball.

Rep. Celler and Sen. Ervin, each chairman of the powerful judiciary committee in their respective houses, are cosponsoring a bill to end baseball's exemption from the anti-trust laws and together are leading a fight to prevent the merger of the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball Association.

Magnuson, long active in the fight to end the giant sports war between the Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Association, also is in the forefront in championing legislation that would take away sport's virtual immunity from antitrust laws and particularly eliminate baseball's reserve clause.

Baseball, with a reserve clause that binds a player to a club for life or until he is traded or sold, has been exempt from antitrust laws since the Supreme Court in 1922 ruled it a sport and not a business.

Recently, the highest court said it would listen to the case of Curt Flood, former star centerfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, who is contesting the reserve clause on the grounds it reduces a player to virtual slavery.

"The fact that the Supreme Court has agreed to hear the case indicates to my mind that the court is now prepared to overthrow the original ruling," Sen. Ervin said.

"It's ominous," agreed Congressman Celler.

Celler, gray-haired, bespectacled, chomping on a black cigar, sat on a brown leather sofa outside the House chamber and let off steam from his growing disenchantment with the operation of professional sports.

"Victor Hugo said when the time for an idea has come, nothing can stop it," said the Brooklyn congressman, who is now approaching his 50th year in the House. "The time has come to declare pro sports a business."

"What was Wellington Mara's motive in moving the New York Giants football team to New Jersey? Every Sunday that the Giants played the stadium was full."

"But Mara had to move. Why? Money. Selfishly, Mara wanted more money. What was the motivating force in the move of the Senators' baseball team to Dallas? Again it was money."

"If money is the motive—and not the welfare of the sport or the fan—then surely this becomes a business."

"It's no longer pure sport. Concessions are worth billions. Television and radio bring in tons of money. Yet owners run the business with an iron hand.

They can't have it both ways—moneywise and sportswise. It's like mixing vinegar with water."

Celler stoutly opposed the merger of the National and American Football Leagues in 1966, as did Sen. Ervin. The merger was made possible by an amendment attached to a tax bill.

"It was a sneak play—an end around," Celler contended. "They skirted my committee. I'll guarantee you it won't happen again. I'm watching every step."

Ervin, also upset by the maneuver, vowed the same.

"The present baseball setup is a form of peonage," the gray-haired Southern senator said. "It's exactly the same thing as in the old days when serfs had to live off the land."

"This is the only case I know of where men are given a monopoly and are allowed to regulate themselves. It's ridiculous."

Professional sports are getting so big and have such an impact on American life, he added, that it may be necessary to create a federal commission to regulate professional sports.

"I'd hate to see the government have to step in," Ervin said. "We are overly governed as it is, but it may be inevitable."

"From evidence before my committee, it's impossible to tell whether the club owner is gaining or losing money. For instance, Bob Short (owner of

Delaware Takes Lead In College Division Ratings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The University of Delaware, winner of the last three Boardwalk Bowl games, has taken over first place in the Associated Press college division football poll ... by the narrowest of margins.

The Blue Hens, who overpowered Lehigh 49-22 last Saturday for their seventh victory in eight games, collected eight of the 17 first-place votes and 270 points in this week's voting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters. They finished one point ahead of McNeese State.

Delaware, 9-2 in each of the past two seasons and 8-3 in 1968, also was named winner of the Lambert Cup all three years. The Cup is presented annually to the top college division team in the East.

McNeese State, the leader in last week's poll, dropped to second this time after playing a 3-3 tie with Northwestern Louisiana. The Cowboys, 7-0-1, received four first-place nominations and 269 points.

Eastern Michigan, 6-0-2 after tying Northeastern Louisiana 10-10, slipped from second to third with two first-place votes and 258 points.

Louisiana Tech, Boise State and Tennessee State, the fourth, fifth and sixth teams, split the other three first-place votes. Western Kentucky was seventh, followed by North Dakota, North Dakota State and Akron.

The Associated Press Top 10 college division football teams with season records and total points based on a 20 for first, 18 for second 16-14-12-10-9-8-etc. basis:

1. Delaware 7-1 270
2. McNeese St. 7-0-1 269
3. Eastern Michigan 6-0-2 258
4. Louisiana Tech 7-1 210
5. Boise St. 8-1 163
6. Tennessee St. 7-1 159
7. Western Kentucky 6-2-1 111
8. North Dakota 6-3 84
9. North Dakota St. 7-2 73
10. Akron 6-2 50

Motor Vehicle Tax Receipts Up

Motor vehicle sales tax receipts for Pickaway County during October were up 41.88 per cent over receipts of October 1970 according to a report from the office of Gertrude W. Donahey, treasurer of the state. Receipts this year totaled $56,035.80 compared to $39,492.71 a year ago. The collections for the fiscal year, July 1 to date total $217,238.22 compared to $175,308.98 a year ago.

Sales tax collections during October were up 1.13 per cent over a year ago with receipts of $45,349.88 compared to $44,841.47 a year ago. Sales tax receipts for the current fiscal year are $209,267.46 compared to $170,391.85 a year ago.

Harris Drive

tration has launched initiatives which one aide said were designed to "change the farmer's frown to a slight smile."

Last Friday, officials announced arrangements for the sale of nearly $136 million worth of corn and other livestock feed grains to the Soviet Union.

The action was hailed in the big midwestern corn states, where farmers—and their congressmen—have been complaining about depressed prices resulting from a record corn crop.

Earlier, the administration had disclosed it would pay farmers $600 million in subsidies to take more acres out of production next year—a move designed to offset the political unrest that flows from sagging grain prices.

sorry Fred can't go on, but it is difficult to evaluate the impact."

Harris quit the race saying he is not satisfied with any of the other prospects, but doesn't have the money to challenge them.

And McGovern, now the only announced Democratic candidate, said the early dropouts of Harris, Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana should help his presidential bid.

"I think there's more potential McGovern support among the kind of people who were backing them," he said in an interview, though he acknowledged it could yield Lindsay support, too.

Harris summed up his situation Wednesday with three words: "I am broke." He said the campaign he announced formally on Sept. 24 cost between $250,000 and $300,000 before the funds ran out.

"If I could see $50,000 a month up until primary time, I would run right now," he said.

He said he believes America is ready for fundamental change, for a redistribution of income, a breakup of major corporations, a foreign policy based on idealism.

peared on the grapes of Rhine River vineyards and the growers are delighted. To them, the fungus signals great wine.

"The 1971 grape crop is a relatively small vintage of very high quality," said Hans Ambrosi, director of Rheingau Vineyards owned by the state of Hesse, Germany's largest wine producer. "For the first time since 1953 we have the 'noble rot' in quantity."

Ambrosi plucked a bunch of grapes from a vat destined for the wine press. Many of the berries were a ripe yellow. Others seemed to have melted into a purplish mass, like dozens of wizened raisins crushed into a ball. "That is noble rot," he said.

It is a dust-like mold—botrytis cinerea—that decays the skins of grapes that reach a stage of overripeness on the vine. The phenomenon, every 5 to 10 years "concentrates the grape sugar from which we produce wines of the highest quality."

Ambrosi, who holds a degree in viticulture, explained how wine growers can predict a great wine six months before the earliest maturing bottles will be uncorked.

"The climatic factors have been fulfilled for highest quality wine," he said. "We've had much sun, high temperatures and sufficient rain in the May to October vegetation months. "We had a warm, humid au-turn to promote growth of the noble rot. The sugar content of the grapes has reached record high levels without loss of acidity in the berries. Thus the wines will be in balance and harmonious."

The importance of summer sunlight cannot be over-emphasized in a wine district as northerly as Winnipeg in Canada. This year the May to October growing season had 1,291 hours of sunlight, the seventh highest count of the century, according to Ambrosi.

Springfield Hit By Water Loss

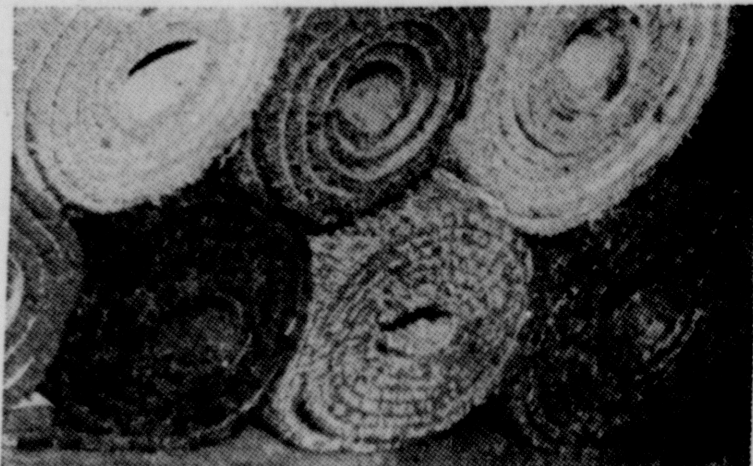

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — There were no fire runs in the residential and industrial north-east section of Springfield Wednesday while water pressure was down because of a break in a 24-inch trunk line. Children were let out of all public schools because of the potential danger of fire with pressure too low to combat it. Pressure was restored later Wednesday and schools were to resume normal operations today.

Officials said, the break caused an estimated 15 million gallons of water to spill
